Strange Case Still Unsolved—

THE BIZARRE disappearance of Mrs. Maude Robinson Crawford of Camden marked its 15th anniversary Thursday. She would be 73 now.

Her case has grown to be one of the longest and most puzzling missing persons case in the history of the state. After 15 years of searching, officers on the case are no closer to solving the mysterious disappearance than they were March 2, 1957, the day she disappeared.

It seemed a very normal day, with Mrs. Crawford spending several hours at her law office and shopping in the afternoon. Her husband Clyde, who spent the evening out, returned to find the house in order, the lights on, and the next day's meal partly cooked. The family dog was present and well.

Mrs. Crawford was gone. In the days that followed, one of the largest manhunts ever staged in Arkansas failed to uncover a single clue. And although there are rumors from time to time, none have been proven valid.

The most recent lead in the case was a tale of a midnight burial in the Quachita River bottoms soon after the disappearance. The police soon found out it too was another false lead. In the meanwhile, Mrs. Crawford's husband has passed away. —Batesville Guard

A wealthy resident of Monte Carlo, Monaco, and his wife recently visited New York. Entering the lobby of their hotel at 3 a.m. they were met by a well-dressed man with a gun. Broadcasters Are Cautioned

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said Thursday the broadcasting industry would have to take corrective action before it can expect an end to criticism for bias in news and public affairs programs.

"Too many citizens today are convinced that bias exists in news and public affairs programs, especially those of the networks," McClellan said. "This condition should be and can be corrected by the industry itself without interference or intrusion of the heavy hand of government."

McClellan, speaking to the Arkansas Broadcasters Association, urged the broadcasting to take voluntary action to improve this type of program.

The senator also said he would continue to push for regulations that will permit co-existence between traditional broadcasting and the infant CATV system.

"My principal concern has been that the cable system survive, that it not be strangled by harsh and restrictive legislation," he said.

Steps Taken to Make Doctors Keep Updated

By C.G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer

The doctor's pocketbook is causing him to have a careful look at the kind of medicine other doctors practice.

With an increase in the number of medical malpractice suits and what is considered a phenomenal rise in the amount of court awards to persons injured by doctors and other medical workers, the cost of medical malpractice insurance has risen—also phenomenally.

It is not uncommon for juries to award damages in six figures to injured patients. Some awards exceeding $1 million have been made. This has meant a skyrocketing of insurance premium costs, so that a high-risk specialist may have to pay as much as $28,000 a year for coverage.

The cost is spread over the risk group, so every member must share the increased costs resulting from adverse rulings against each member.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., sees a "direct and deeply disturbing correlation between malpractice suits and the quality of medical practice."

He said in a speech, "For too long, hospitals have avoided the issue of physician competence by hiding behind the inadequate facade of 'take-it-or-leave-it' continuing education programs or by passing the problem on for burial by the county medicine cal society."

The American Medical Association is trying to do something about the high cost of medical malpractice insurance by offering a plan to doctors which is tied to a peer review plan aimed at eliminating the causes of claims—that is, bad medical practice—and discouraging expensive court suits.

Before a medical society affiliated with the AMA can participate in the insurance program, it must establish a peer review system which will eliminate from coverage doctors "deemed by their colleagues to be unacceptable or representing a high liability risk."

Ballot Case to High Court

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Samuel R. Taylor of Griffithsboro asked the Arkansas Supreme Court Thursday to bar the White County Election Commission from removing his name from the ballot in Tuesday's school election.

Circuit Court Judge Elmo Taylor of Searcy enjoined the Election Commission from putting Taylor's name on the ballot because he had registered to vote in the wrong township and owned no real property in the district.

Taylor is a member of the school board and is running for re-election. Ed Lightle of Searcy, Taylor's attorney, asked the Supreme Court Thursday to stay Judge Taylor's order so that, if Taylor wins, the issue can be settled by a trial.

Students Begin a Hunger Experiment

Main to Close to All Traffic

South Main Street will be closed to all traffic beginning Tuesday, March 14 for six weeks. This has to be done in order to allow contractors to complete the construction project. All water, gas and electrical lines have had to be relaid, the street widened and new pavement laid.

Traffic will be rerouted on Elm Street from Third. Residents of Elm are advised there will be no parking on Elm during this period. All vehicles must be parked in driveways to relieve the heavy traffic hazard.

MIAMI, Okla. (AP) — Eight northeastern Oklahoma A&M College students who wanted to experience hunger began a five-day experiment of not eating Thursday.

The students gave up half their spring vacation to learn what it's like to go hungry.

Rufus Maynard, a psychology instructor who is helping sociologist Al Moffat direct the experiment, said the eight sophomore men and women went into "isolation"—the locked gymnasium—about noon Thursday, and he gave them a battery of tests.

Maynard said the idea developed in Moffat's class on social problems when the students started discussing hunger in lower class American families and its effects on a person's life.

No one here thinks there will be any significant findings in the experiment. It was set up just to give the students the experience of hunger.

The students are in an isolated environment that demands they cooperate with each other.

They will eat no food. They are allowed all the water they can drink and are on a ration of fruit juices, to give them enough sugar and vitamin C.

Maynard, noting similar experiments which were done during World War II, believes it will be several days before the results of not eating will take their toll.

He expects the students will become mildly depressed, fatigued, irritable and they may not cooperate as well.

"All of this is fairly predictable," he said Thursday night.

Maynard gave the students tests in reading speed, reading comprehension and remembering numbers for short periods of time. He will give the same tests periodically throughout the experiment to the students can see how hunger affects their reading and memory abilities.

The volunteers have been cutting down on their food intake all week in preparation for the ordeal.

Flying Security Measures Are Stepped Up

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Writer

The Federal Aviation Administration today forecast a modest improvement in the outlook for flying security for the weekend while airports and airlines stepped up measures to combat bomb threats.

"It looks like the trouble may be winding down," an FAA spokesman said.

By 6 p.m. EST Friday the FAA had registered about 20 telephone threats of bombings or hijackings around the nation for the day. This compared with 48 on Thursday, 24 on Wednesday, and eight on Tuesday.

Most were clearly hoaxes, the FAA said, but all were checked out in the interest of public safety.

The threats followed three incidents earlier in the week in which explosives actually were placed on aircraft. Two devices were recovered before exploding, but the other detonated, badly damaging a parked jetliner at Las Vegas, Nev.

Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe prepared for a session next week to discuss stricter air security measures with Cabinet members.

Volpe conferred with airline executives Friday before leaving for a weekend speaking engagement in Mexico City.

Meantime, airlines and airport operators moved to implement stricter security measures ordered by President Nixon and being drafted in the form of regulations by the FAA.

The Air Line Pilots Association welcomed the President's action.

War Ace Very Ill

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Gregory "Pappy" Boyington was credited with knocking 28 Japanese planes from the skies during World War II. Now he says a multitude of problems is shooting down his health.

"The type of life I lived, the old machine was bound to wear out," the gravel voiced, 59-year-old Medal of Honor winner said in an interview Thursday.

Boyington, living here temporarily to get treatment at a Veterans Administration hospital, said his ailments have included cancer which required the removal of part of one lung.

"I've been quite ill the last five years. I just want to pass on without fuss," Boyington said. "I've had a pretty full life, and nothing lasts forever. Any way the wind blows, I won't kick."

Boyington was an American war hero even before the United States entered World War II. He was credited with six kills over China in 1941 while flying with Gen. Claire Chennault's American volunteer group, the Flying Tigers.

Promote Nutria Pelts

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Louisiana, hoping to promote the specialized art of nutria for dressing in the United States, is giving 300 raw nutria pelts to three New York firms for experiments.

But several Louisiana raw fur dealers think the whole idea is a waste of time—and skins.

Nutria are small beaverlike rodents which abound in the swamps of South Louisiana. Trapping nutria is big business in the state, with the biggest market in Europe.

An important step before the skin becomes a finished soft furry coat or lining is fur dressing and dyeing, a highly specialized process. It involves plucking coarse hair and reaching desired shades of color.

"Why are we doing this? Just to prove it can be done," said Ted O'Neil, head of the fur division of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission.

The commission, in authorizing the American firms to experiment with the free pelts, signed up to get a few finished nutria coats of their own at wholesale price, he noted.

Reaction to the experiment idea came hard and fast.

"These professional politicians, they get together, laugh and joke. They're giving the furs to local people who don't know how to dress a cat right," said Julian Steinberg, a New Orleans dealer in raw nutria and muskrat skins.

"It's a waste of time," he said.

The nutria, native to South America, were imported into Louisiana in the 1930s.

The experiment, O'Neil said, is partly based on Louisiana fur dealer complaints of having their money tied up for so long in Europe.

"They have to buy $100,000 to $200,000 worth of fur and they don't know what they have until the next year. If we dress them in this country, they can find out where they are right away," he said.

Grant to Study Alcoholism

WASHINGTON (AP) — A grant of $195,115 to the Arkansas Department of Social and Rehabilitative Services for the first year of an eight-year study of alcoholism has been approved, Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said Thursday.

Home decorating is coming full circle with a return to use of natural woods, handcrafted furnishings and accessories and a general rustic simplicity. Perfect examples of the trend are rooms by designer-importer Crosby Wight Smith. On the left an 18th century hand-carved Finnish cupboard keys a dining area with blue and brown fabric design and 19th century chairs painted a light blue. Embroidery trim tops the dotted fabric wallcovering. Smith continues the mood at right using a geometric printed corduroy on the wall as a backdrop for a hand-carved 1800's Finnish daybed. Corner cupboard is also painted. For a '72 touch pillows are white vinyl and chair, table and tea trolley are contemporary plastic. Smith sprayed all materials with a fabric protector to help retain their beauty.

These Fabrics Are Guaranteed

By JOANNE SCHREIBER

There's no worse feeling in the world. You buy terrific fabric, you invest in pattern, thread, zipper and notions, you spend hours fitting and stitching — then it shrinks to pigmy-size after the first washing. Or all the colors run. Or it fades. Or it ravels. What's a girl to do?

Up till now, there wasn't much you could do except boycott the store where you bought the material. But now it's actually possible to get your money back if your fabric misbehaves, thanks to the sympathetic outlook of James F. Ritchie, president of Burlington/Klopman. Mr. Ritchie has put a guarantee on each roll of his fabric, so the home sewer can get her money back if she's not satisfied with fabric quality and performance.

This is the first time such a guarantee has been made

South thought for a long while before passing his partner's four-heart bid. It was a talkative rubber bridge game and when North put down the dummy he remarked "Sure wish you had bid on."

West got off to the rather unfortunate lead of the four of diamonds and South's queen picked up East's jack. At this point South had a rather simple way to play the hand. He was looking at dummy's nice six-card club suit and should have promptly put the jack of clubs on the table. After that start he would have had no trouble making 11 or 12 tricks. But South was so busy thinking about the slam that might have been that he proceeded to find a way to get himself set at four.

He started operation "Chuck the rubber" by cashing his ace of diamonds in order to get rid of one of dummy's spades. Then he led a trump to dummy's ace and a second trump back to his 10 for a losing finesse.

West took the queen and led a third heart won by South.

South finally got around to playing his jack of clubs but East led the jack hold.

Now that nice club suit in dummy was about worthless. South did ruff his last diamond in dummy and led the king of clubs. East plunked on the ace and South ruffed with his last trump.

Then South played ace and a small spade. East won with the 10 and if East had saved all his diamonds, South would have lost the rest of the tricks. But East had thrown a diamond on the third trump lead so East had to give dummy a club in the sewing field.

But don't count on getting your money back too often. The company checks every single one of the millions of yards of material it makes before it is let out of the mills. It goes through tests for color fastness and shrinkage and abrasion and stability and snagging and washing and nonironing. Then it goes through sewing tests and finally actual wear tests.

All this effort proves that big business is out to keep us happy — not only with tempting colors, weights, weaves and patterns, but also with top performance.

She 'Sees' With Her Fingers

KITCHENER, Canada (AP) — Christine Breadner has woven and knitted hundreds of things, but she has never seen one of them with her eyes — only with her sensitive fingers.

Miss Breadner is blind and almost totally deaf as the result of a progressive disease she contracted as a child. She lives at Huronia Hall, a residence for the sightless.

She learned to knit and weave 15 years ago, beginning with plain mats and handbags made on a hand loom.

About 10 years ago she bought her own complex foot loom from money she had earned selling her handicrafts. Until then she had used a loom leased by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

She threads the hettles at the front of the loom and passes the 224 threads through to the back of the loom for an assistant to thread the beater. Once the loom is threaded, she cranks it up herself to get the correct tension.

Some of her more complicated patterns involve using four or five colors, but once the pattern is started by sighted persons, she can complete it. She "sees" the pattern with her fingers.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Blood Tests Reveal Pernicious Anemia

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Can you tell me why I am always so tired? I go to bed tired and get up tired. I have been told that I have pernicious anemia. I was tested but the test did not show any proof of this condition. I have been getting B-12 shots for the past four years once a month and sometimes more often. Besides always being tired I sometimes feel short of breath and a little dizzy. I also feel like something in my throat is choking me. I have low blood pressure. It stays around 102 to 110. My doctor does not let me go for blood tests or any kind of check on my blood. He tells me it is not necessary as long as I get B-12 shots. Blood tests will not reveal anything, anemia will not show up. I am thinking of changing doctors because I feel these shots should build me up and I shouldn't feel so tired all the time.

Dear Reader—In the first place, if you don't have pernicious anemia or B-12 deficiency, there is no reason for you to be taking B-12 shots. In the second place, if you do have pernicious anemia and need shots for it, the one useful way of telling whether your anemia is corrected or not is by a blood test. In fact, it is very difficult to tell whether a person is anemic or not without blood tests. Most doctors would say impossible.

There are many reasons for being tired and anemia is only one. Very often emotional factors are involved in fatigue. Other times it is inactivity (which also may be a manifestation of emotional problems) and sometimes it is improper diet. Less often it is from physical fatigue.

Fatigue is a sign of many different diseases. It covers the gamut from tuberculosis to diabetes so I am not going to try to tell you what causes your fatigue. It may indeed be related to your low blood pressure, although many people who have low blood pressure have normal amounts of energy, are very healthy, and usually live longer than individuals with normal or higher blood pressure. This, of course, presupposes that the relatively low blood pressure is not a sign of some important underlying disease. Low blood pressure and fatigue can be two symptoms.

It seems to me that the first thing for you to do is find out whether you have anemia or not and whether you need B-12 shots or not. That will require some blood examinations and perhaps some other tests.

Of course, I don't know that you have quoted your doctor correctly, but if you cannot feel certain that your blood is being tested and have some idea of whether or not you have anemia, I think, indeed, you should get another doctor.

Helen and Sue Bottel The Generation Gap

Let's Hear it for Twins?

DEAR RAP:

When a twin writes to a column, he or she usually complains about twinhood. Isn't it time we heard something good about the relationship? So here's my version of "WHAT IS A TWIN BROTHER?"

A twin brother is someone who looks like you but he's aggressive and outgoing while you are quiet and shy.

He's the one who always thought of ways to get the two of you in trouble like the time we poured a box of soap powder into the washer and filled the laundry with suds.

He's the one who made you realize you weren't a double, but rather unique.

He's the person you shared the good times and bad with—double dates, your first car, falling in love with the same girl and both realizing she wasn't for you.

Through high school you were inseparable, but then came college. He stayed near home to be close to his steady. You went away and you drifted apart.

He's the one who tried to talk you out of quitting college, but didn't listen. He laughed when you were drafted, but he wasn't really happy. When you left for Vietnam, he talked about the good times you'd have when you got back.

He's the guy who cried when you were wounded and heard you might never walk again. He's the one who came to the hospital every day to give you a boost. As soon as you could stand by yourself, he'd pull you out of bed and say, "Walk, damn you, walk!" "Until you did!"

A twin is a guy who never asks, "What did you do in the war?" because he knows you want to forget. When he finds you won a Silver Star, he doesn't ask why; he only nods when you say, "They gave Stars out to everyone that day," then he gets Dad aside and asks the details. You're the first one to know he is going to marry the girl he's been dating since high school. At that moment both of you realize you'll never be as close again. He's the one who asks you to be best man and forgets to send you a wedding invitation.

The relationship between twins is a very deep but very fragile kind of feeling. A twin knows your joys, hopes, fears, frustrations, your deepest thoughts—because he has them, too. He can rib you about your long hair and beard and membership in Veterans Against the War, but meanwhile he shares your intense disgust for the war. But there is still one secret that neither of you will ever tell the other. That secret is the deep love and admiration you feel for your fellow twin.

As I sit here and write this letter, I'm reliving many of the experiences we shared. The relationship between twins can only be understood by twins. The bond that ties them together can never be broken.—GEMINI

DEAR GEMINI: It's good to hear from a twin who doesn't resent being half of a pair, and who really likes his partner. Thanks for contributing a fine column!

Often, it seems, "those bonds that tie twins together"—are used as whips.—HELEN AND SUE

HAIR CONDITIONING

Nothing will cure split ends, except a haircut. But the best way to avoid them in the first place is regular use of a creme rinse or conditioner. A creme rinse will prevent tangles which make it difficult to comb the hair when wet. And the conditioner will help prevent dry, brittle hair.

NAIL TIPS

Your nails have to be in good shape to get away with the bold nail polishes which range from red to plum. If you don't have long, lovely nails, don't wear colors that will focus attention on them. Use clear polish with a nail hardener base until your nails begin to take shape. Then you can go wild with color.

Record Industry Declares 'War'

By ERNESTINE GUGLIELMO

BRINGING IN THE FEDS—War has been declared. One million dollars has been set aside for battle. And everyone but Elliot Ness is being drafted into the squad.

The good guys are members of the Recording Industry Association of America, which handles 85 per cent of the legitimate record and tape business. Their weapons include a team of lawyers, FBI men, money and a new federal law.

The bad guys are the pirates and bootleggers, who are conducting big-time business operations out of the backs of monstrous trucks parked in shopping centers on weekends. Their weapons include access to studios, shifty retailers, low-cost production and a certain elusiveness. They are men with names like Felix the Cat, who are spoken of only in whispers, said to control the bogus tape business on the West Coast.

Contrary to the belief of some panic-stricken pirates, the feds will not emerge with Tommy guns from black limousines to raid warehouses which store the loot. Instead, a field staff, disguised as mild-mannered ordinary citizens, will browse around record retailers across the country. If the decoys turn up with goods that violate the new federal anti-pirating copyright laws, they'll notify the government authorities. This leaves the shop owner subject to a jail term, a $1,000 fine and a padlock on his door.

Felix and friends manage to produce the eight-track tapes overnight and sell them for almost nothing, causing the Recording Industry of America companies a loss they estimate at $150 million annually.

The artists are losing large amounts in royalties, the distributors are losing sales and the federal, state and local governments are losing substantial tax revenues. That's why they all joined the fight. The war is on.

POWDER FACE

Face powder is the best thing for a matte finish which will accentuate a glossy, deep-colored mouth and smoky eyes. And face powder is no longer thick and caky. Now it's sheer

MIX 'N' MATCH

Your Spring wardrobe doesn't have to be very expensive. A few pleated skirts in neutral colors can be mixed and matched for the whole season. Blazers, blouses, vests and pullovers in lightweight knits will all go with the new pleated skirts.

"Isfahan is half the world," the saying went. And so it seemed in its time of greatest glory—when the 17th century Iranian sovereign, Shah Abbas I, chose it for Iran's capital and determined to make it the most beautiful city in all of Asia. A ruler of taste and imagination, he brought to the city craftsmen, architects, artists and gardeners from as far away as China and Austria. Travelers' tales of the 17th and 18th centuries tell of the splendor of his palaces, mosques, bridges and gardens, of the brilliance of curving turquoise domes, with their delicate and precise faience mosaics, dominated by lofty minarets. This golden age was followed by a period of decline, and of neglect for the city's buildings. But many of them survive—crowded today between mud and brick houses of the old city and mushrooming business districts of the new.

IN OUR CITIES, 1 PERSON IN 29

Citizen's vs Crime

More people are becoming interested in law enforcement because 'more' people are becoming victims of crime. According to the FBI, here are the shocking facts: major crimes up 11% in the nation last year, with odds of being a victim of a serious crime almost 2½ times greater than a decade ago.

Last year, individuals spent over $2 billion on efforts to deter crime — on burglar alarms, locks, karate lessons and the like — a figure that exceeds over ½ billion the entire amount appropriated in the 1971 Federal budget to reduce crime.

Now, in most towns and cities, organized groups of private citizens are becoming a potent force in the nation's fight against crime. Such volunteer groups attack crime in several ways. There are ways you can help too. Why not inquire about such a group in your city.

Your efforts, however so small, can help in our great battle: "Citizens vs Crime".

Prospects Good for Repairmen

By ERNIE HOOD

Projections by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics point up industrial growth that will afford many opportunities for those seeking employment as mechanics and repairmen.

In response to your letters from across the country, here are some of the classifications you've inquired about:

Air-conditioning, refrigeration and heating mechanics—100,000 employed in 1968 and 140,000 in 1980, for a growth rate of 40 per cent.

Aircraft mechanics—135,000 in 1968 and 230,000 in 1980, for a growth rate of 70.4 per cent.

Yanks Not Without Practical Jokers

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer
FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Mike Kekich of the New York Yankees remembers looking at the scoreboard—and there it was flapping in the breeze.

"I was running my sprints before the game," the pitcher remembers of that unforgettable day in Milwaukee in the merry, merry month of May, "when someone came up to me and said, 'Hey, what's that thing up on the scoreboard?'"

"I look up and I see this green thing waving in the breeze. It was my water bed—my new water bed."

"I had bought it in Minnesota for $60 and carried it on our road trip to Chicago and Milwaukee. I wasn't going to leave it there. I went up on the scoreboard while they were playing the National Anthem and got it."

But Kekich had been "done"—a victim of the fertile mind of Fritz Peterson, the cunning leader of the Yankees' practical jokers.

To be "done", in the vernacular of the pranksters, is to have a practical joke played on you. To "do", in the same sense, is to play the practical joke. Kekich now is looking to "do" Peterson—to make the hunter the hunted.

"Nothing ever happens to him," Kekich complains in mock seriousness. "But that is going to cease."

What form the act of massive retaliation will take remains a mystery. But Kekich will have two other members of the Yankee pitching staff working with him, the other two pranksters, quiet Mel Stottlemyre and newcomer Steve Kline.

Kline is being looked on as a replacement for Stan Bahnsen, who was a perpetrator of pranks until he was traded to the Chicago White Sox in an off-season transaction.

The "doers" deal in all sorts of escapades—large and small.

Small jokes include putting sand, water or a pickle in someone's shoes, filling the fingers of a glove with mustard, using the lock they've named Big Ben to anchor luggage to an immovable object or nailing shoes or attache cases to the floor.

Large jokes include the old water bed trick, sending luggage all over the country, putting the team photographer's camera in the sauna, replacing new autographed balls with beat up substitutes and "borrowing" someone's credit card.

The credit card caper was pulled off by Peterson last year after he and the departed Bahnsen had lost a hitting contest to Stottlemyre and Kekich, the losers guaranteeing to buy the winners dinner.

Stottlemyre and Kekich decided on a lavish multicourse Polynesian feast, devouring one exotic dish after another, all the while mocking Peterson and Bahnsen. But, at one point, Stottlemyre made the mistake of excusing himself for a mo-

Somehow—the full details have remained locked forever behind Peterson's sealed lips—Peterson managed to get his hands on Stottlemyre's credit card and signed his name to the tab. When Stottlemyre returned, Peterson made a grand gesture of having paid for the meal.

Only weeks later did Stottlemyre and Kekich find they had been had.

"That's the dirtiest," complained Kekich. "That whole time we're sitting there enjoying ourselves and we're paying for it."

The odd thing about the entire situation is that Peterson holds a Master's Degree from Northern Illinois University and its unquestionably an erudite young man seemingly far removed from such antics. But, as a prankster, he is somewhat of a throwback to another era when baseball players were less educated and more raucous.

Peterson acknowledges that.

"Most guys take me as a serious guy at first," he explained. "But it's a lot of fun and as long as nobody gets hurt I get a kick out of it. And we do give a guy complete amnesia the day of the game. We don't even try to blame him for something we do."

But why?

"Life is just too boring just sitting around," said Peterson. "It's mostly baseball; I'd rather be a hitter playing every day, but even if I was I'd do the same stuff. And, in the regular part of life, when I get a chance I do it too."

"I 'did' Stottlemyre during the offseason, but I can't tell about it unless he's willing to."

What about it Mel?

"Well," said Stottlemyre, breaking into a sheepish grin bespeaking embarrassment, "we have three children and somehow word got around that my wife was pregnant, which isn't true. But that didn't stop Fritz."

"He sent my wife and me brochures from planned parenthood."

Bullpen Failure Is What Hurt Yankees

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer
FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — At the end of the 1970 baseball season, Lindy McDaniel had 29 saves, Jack Aker had 20 saves and the New York Yankees had a 93-69 record.

At the end of 1971, McDaniel had four saves, Aker had four saves, and the Yankees had an 82-80 record.

"That's what killed us," says Manager Ralph Houk, pointing an accusing finger at the two bullpen aces. "That's the whole story of the season. I think our ballclub was better last year than in 1970—other than for the bullpen."

"Aker had a bad back that bothered him and McDaniel had a neck operation just before spring training and got off bad. Our bullpen has to be better this year because it was so bad last year. We think they have a good chance of bouncing back."

Bouncing back for the Yankees, as far as Houk is concerned, means bouncing back into the 90-victory circle and challenging the American League champion Baltimore Orioles for the A.L. East title.

While the bullpen is one area that needs strengthening, the Yankees are far from set in the infield and outfield, despite Houk's obvious optimism.

The team's major weapons are sound pitching in starters Mel Stottlemyre, 16-12; Fritz Peterson, 15-13; Mike Kekich, 10-9, and Steve Kline, 12-13, and the proven bats of outfielders Bobby Murcer and Roy White.

Murcer, at 26, is a legitimate superstar following a 1971 season in which he hit .331 with 25 homers and 94 runs batted in. White is a consistent hitter who swung at a .292 clip last season, and contributed 19 homers and 84 RBIs.

Hope for improvement in the hitting department centers around catcher Thurman Munson, first baseman Ron Blomberg, and new third baseman Rich McKinney, acquired from the Chicago White Sox in a trade for pitcher Stan Bahnsen. Munson can be expected to hit back to his Rookie of the year form after slipping to .251. Blomberg is the first base hope following a 64-game turn with the Yankees last year during which he hit .322 with seven homers and 31 RBIs.

McKinney hit .271 with Chicago last season and displayed some power with eight homers and 46 RBIs.

The remainder of the infield shows holdovers Horace Clarke at second base, Gene Michael at shortstop. But each has competition. For Clarke, it's rookie Fred Frazier; for Michael, it's Frank Baker. Also on hand is veteran Bernie Allen, acquired from the Washington Senators-Texas Rangers.

In the outfield, right field is open with Felipe Alou, Ron Swoboda, Danny Cater and Johnny Callison the veteran candidates. The rookie hope is Rusty Torres, a .290-hitting product of Syracuse with 19 homers and 71 RBIs.

With the first four starters set, there doesn't figure to be any significant change among the main pitchers, unless McDaniel and Aker falter again. But there are bullpen candidates in two acquisitions from the White Sox—Rich Hinton and Tim Magnuson—and Syracuse product Alan Closter.

Even the biggest optimist wouldn't suggest that the Yankees have much of an opportunity to overhaul Baltimore. There is no way the Yankees' talent matches the Orioles'.

White Sox Want to Keep Improvement Ratio Going

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — The Chicago White Sox went from dead last to third place in their first season under Manager Chuck Tanner.

They sliced 23 games from their losing total of 106 games in 1970 and added it to their winning total of 79 games last season.

"If we could make that much more improvement this year, where would it put us?" asks Tanner.

It would give the Sox a 102-60 record and probably land them in first place in the American League West for the 1972 season. But improving another 23 games will not be that easy.

Under Tanner, the Sox have the desire. They also have the power with acquisition of Dick Allen to go along with Bill Melton, who led the American League with 33 home runs, and Carlos May, the league's No. 7 hitter with a .294 average.

And they'll not be lacking on the mound with a staff which includes 22-game winning Wilbur Wood and Tom Bradley, a 15-game winner in his first season with Chicago.

In addition, they added Stan Bahnsen, a solid performer acquired from the New York Yankees, and for the fourth man there's Bart Johnson who made his mark last season by coming out of the bullpen throwing strikes.

But, alas, the Sox for a change could be in trouble defensively.

Their big problems down to the end of the 1971 season were up the middle defensively. They started out with Mike Andrews at second and rookie Bee Bee Reardon at shortstop. Neither was at either position when the season ended.

In centerfield, everyone got a shot at the job. At one time or another Rich Reichardt, Ed Stroud, Lee Maye, Pat Kelly and Jay Johnstone played the key outfield spot with Johnstone finishing the season there.

The Sox went into the winter deals determined to strengthen the middle but their big swap came in the acquisition of Allen, who prefers to be called Dick instead of Richie.

Although Allen agreed to a contract of $125,000, making him the highest paid player in Chicago history, he still hasn't been heard from at camp.

"I'm not worried, he'll show up," vowed Tanner. "And I know when he gets here he'll be in shape."

When Allen shows up he'll be stationed at first base with Melton at third. Once again, the Sox will have to go with the second-base combination of Richard and Andrews. Their hopes are Andrews has overcome a sore arm which prevented him from completing double plays and that Richard can do the job with a year of experience under him.

There's no change behind the plate and probably none is needed. Tom Egan and Ed Herrmann shared the chores last season and combined for more than 20 home runs and 70 runs batted in.

With Allen taking over first base, May goes to left field. That leaves Reichardt, Kelly, Johnstone, Walt Williams and Jim Lytle, a pickup from the Yankees, battling for the two remaining jobs.

Wood will head the pitching rotation followed by Bradley and Bahnsen, a 14-game winner with the Yankees. If Johnson rounds out the rotation, Tanner den Fairview jumped to a 16-5 first quarter lead and was never headed en route to a 55-46 semifinal victory over Altheimer in the Class AA senior boys state basketball tournament in Little Rock Friday.

Fairview will face defending AA champion Magnolia in the finals of the tournament tonight. Magnolia defeated Conway 45-34 in the other semifinal game Friday.

Altheimer committed five costly turnovers in the first quarter and fell too far behind to catch up against the talented Cardinal squad. All the turnovers were on poor passes.

Billy Kennedy led Fairview with 16 points and Freeman Rogers scored 15. Clinton Barnett scored 15 for Altheimer.

Conway trailed 18-16 at intermission after a close first half, but Magnolia broke open the game in the third period but scoring 15 points while holding Conway to eight.

Lathell McKeller and Willie Dale led Magnolia with 13 points each. No Conway player scored in double figures. Hal Crafton and Mike Stanton were the top Conway scorers with eight apiece.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Little Rock Central and El Dorado square off tonight in the championship game of the state Class AAA-AAAA basketball tournament in Little Rock.

In Friday's semifinal action Central defeated Little Rock Parkview 70-60 and El Dorado nipped Little Rock Hall 57-56.

Central pulled away in the final period to defeat Parkview.

The game developed as a scoring battle between Central's Fred Allen and Parkview's Dexter Reed. Allen came out on top by scoring 31 points to 29 for Reed.

The game was close through the first half with Central holding a 34-33 advantage at intermission.

The Tigers began pulling away in the third quarter and led 48-43 going into the final period.

Danny McDaniel contributed 13 points to the Central attack and Raymond Hopes had 11 for Parkview.

Hall and El Dorado tossed the lead back and forth through most of the game.

El Dorado maintained a 29-28 halftime advantage, but the score was tied 43-43 going into the final quarter.

Freddie Anderson sank a 20-foot jump shot with five seconds remaining to boost El Dorado to the winning margin.

Jim Crow led El Dorado with 19 points. Clifton Lewis had 16 for Hall.

The 1973 USGA Amateur golf championship will be held at Inverness in Toledo, Aug. 29-Sept. 1.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — "We just have to wait and see who's going to do the job for us," says Manager Red Schoendienst about the St. Louis Cardinals' pitching.

But away from the mound, a problem for the Redbirds the past two seasons, Schoendienst may be fielding the strongest lineup he's had since back-to-back St. Louis pennants in 1967 and '68.

Scott Sets Scoring Mark

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — New York's Rick Barry was on the sidelines with a sore foot.

Virginia's Charlie Scott was on the court, setting an American Basketball Association single-season scoring record.

So you'd think Virginia, a second place club with a winning record, would not have too much trouble beating the Nets, a third place club with a losing record, right?

That's what Virginia Coach Al Bianchi thought, and that's why he was so upset when the Nets outplayed his Squires and posted a 113-99 victory Thursday night.

In the only other ABA game of the night, Memphis whipped Denver 113-102.

After trailing in the early going, the Nets pulled ahead 28-27 after 1:34 of the second quarter. They led by 54-42 at the half, pulled away to an 83-59 bulge in the third quarter and coasted home.

Bianchi was not pleased with the result.

"I told them at halftime that a fine was coming if they didn't win," Bianchi declared after the game.

"They didn't, so it came."

"A big chunk" was the way Bianchi described the fine which he levied against each member of the Squires. That included Scott, whose 24 points gave him 2,524 for the season, four more than the ABA record set by Spencer Haywood of Denver in 1969-70.

"We had to play harder because we knew Rick was out," explained Nets center Billy Paultz, a big factor with 18 points, 25 rebounds and four blocked shots.

Barry's injury occurred in the fourth quarter of New York's overtime loss to the Kentucky Colonels Tuesday night.

Optimism Prevails in Detroit Tiger Camp

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Optimism pervades the Detroit Tigers' spring training camp, and it shouldn't be shrugged off as "standard operational procedure" of the Grapefruit League season.

Manager Billy Martin, in his second year in command, ran a tight ship last year and is the type who has a way of getting the maximum from a ballplayer. Two years ago the Tigers finished fourth in the East Division of the American League, 29 games behind leader Baltimore. But Martin guided them to second behind the Orioles last season, 12 games out.

"A year ago they thought they could win," Billy says of his players. "Now they expect to win, and that really can make a difference in how a team plays."

Last season the Tigers won 10 of 18 games against Baltimore and Martin believes "this year the other teams are stronger and should help us by beating the Orioles more."

But Baltimore has four 20-game winning pitchers returning. Detroit has two—Mickey Lolich and Joe Coleman. Beyond that the mound corps is a great question mark.

Les Cain, plagued by arm troubles last year, is only 24 years old and has tremendous potential. Martin has tabbed him the No. 3 starter, with the No. 4 man to come from Mike Kilkenny, relievers Fred Scherman or Tom Timmerman, possibly rookie Bill Glibreth, or veteran Joe Niekro.

If the pitching situation develops favorably, the Tigers have to be a genuine threat to unseat Baltimore. If not, they will have to fight off New York and Boston for second.

Bill Freehan is an All-Star catcher and has spent a year recovering from back surgery. He should be a big plus. And now he has a veteran catcher in Tom Haller to back him up. Haller was acquired in trade from Los Angeles.

Al Kaline returns for his 20th season in right field. He has a .300 lifetime batting average and hasn't lost any of his zest and ability.

Jim Northrup drove in 71 runs and batted .270 last year, while Willie Horton had 22 homers, drove in 72 runs and had a .289 average. Both outfielders must have good years if Detroit hopes to capture the division.

Mickey Stanley, one of the premier centerfield govmen in the league, is back as the fourth outfielder. He batted .292 last year and actually plays about as much as the other three.

The infield is solid. Ed Brinkman set a single season major league record at shortstop with 56 consecutive errorless games. Third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez, 24, is considered by many as the likely successor to Baltimore's Brooks Robinson as the top hot corner man in the AL.

Norm Cash had a good year in 1971 with 32 homers, 91 runs batted-in and a .283 average. But he is 37. Rookie John Young might make the roster as a substitute first baseman, and Northrup, Kaline, Freehan, Dalton Jones and others can play there if necessary.

Tony Taylor and Dick McAuliffe will alternate at second.

Cardinals Will Just Wait, See

The Cards' club pitching showed a combined 3.05 ERA in 1971, but the fault was not that of relievers Stan Williams (1.38), Frank Linzy (2.14), Don Shaw (2.45) and Moe Drabowsky (3.45).

In fact, the four had a collective record of 20-6 at season's end, with the addition of Joe Grzenda to join Shaw as a left-hander, could form the NL's best relief corps. d last y

To climb back atop the NL perch it had occupied three of five years before a skid set in in 1969, St. Louis must have another 20-victory season from Gibson, now 36, and one of nearly equal caliber from Wise or the fifth starter in question.

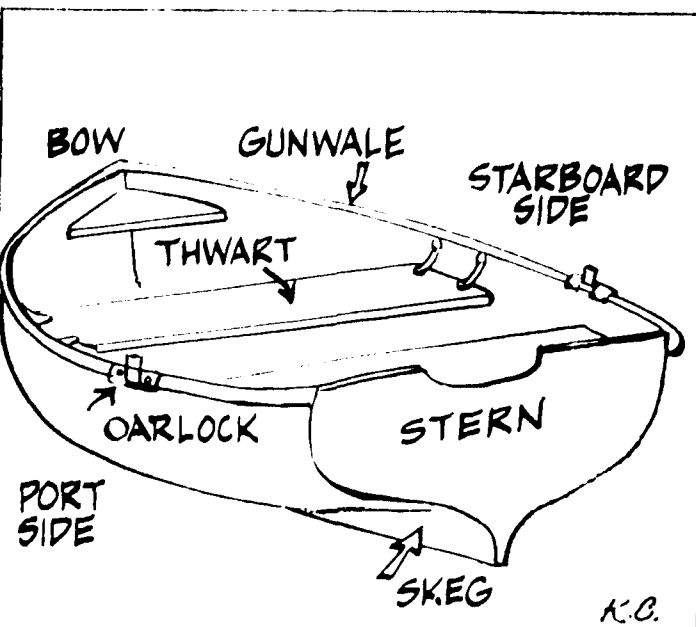

"It might take a little longer this year than it did last year before we make up our mind on the fifth starter," says Schoendienst.

"But overall, we have a lot more to choose from than we had last year. I think our pitching is the big thing. I know I say that every year, but if we get the good pitching we're going to score enough to win."
